Dear Mr. Headrick,

I appreciate your writing; me but God willing day after tomorrow I'll be 82, ^{gm}and not in good health and cannot keep up with the work on which I'm engaged.

So please do not send me Ostrich or The Australian Police Report.

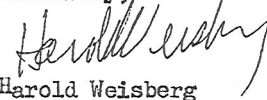

For your information, as I set forth in my second book, with copies of the surveyors plats, Elm Street was repaved after the assassination and the ^{new} stripes no longer are where they were.

In addition, photographs show that it was not possible that Hickey fired that shot by accident.

In addition, spectrographic analysis of the fragments recovered from the President's head rule it out.

Good luck with your other endeavor.

Sincerely,

Harold Weisberg
